What is the AAA School Safety Patrol

A group of students who create a safer school environment by identifying safety hazards

Patrollers oversee arrival and dismissal from their assigned posts throughout the school

The AAA School Safety Patrol Today

For over 100 years, the AAA School Safety Patrol program has kept school children safe. Today, more than 679,000 Patrollers continue this legacy throughout schools nationwide.

Famous Patrollers

Many important figures in U.S. history gained their first leadership experience as a AAA School Safety Patroller

- U.S. Presidents
- Vice Presidents
- Supreme Court Justices
- Nobel Prize Winners
- Governors
- Senators
- Olympic Gold Medalists
- Astronauts

Typical Patroller Roles

AAA School Safety Patrollers direct children, not traffic.

Typical roles include:

- Teaching other students about traffic safety on a peer-to-peer basis
- Serving as role models for younger children
- Standing duty in hallways and at doorways to ensure students aren't pushing or running
- Assisting younger students in getting to class safely
- Helping car riders enter/exit their family vehicles safely
- Serving as extra eyes and ears for safety on school buses

A Great Patroller

- Positively represents their school and community
- Is willing to work hard to help others
- Leads by example
- Earns respect by being consistent and fair

Being a safety patrol has helped me become a leader in the school. I am responsible because it has helped me stay out of trouble.

The first reason I like Safety Patrol is because I get to help people around my school. I get to leave class early. My responsibilities are helping Prek to 1st grade students and bus duties. Safety Patrol helps me be a part of my school community since I am new to the school this year.

The reason I like being a Safety Patrol is I like to help people. When people have hard days, I like to comfort them or calm them. I ask if they need anything to help them calm down. The second reason is I like working with the little kids making them feel good about themselves. In my old school, I use to work with kids who had disabilities. Another reason I like being Safety Patroller is I like seeing the smiles on peoples' faces. Their joy overwhelms me sometimes!

Being a Safety Patrol is like taking care of your brother or sister, but it is way better. My responsibilities as a Safety Patrol are car rider duty and bus duty. I like telling kids to have a safe day in the mornings. Being a Safety Patrol can be difficult. For example, when the little kids come in crying because they miss their parents, we comfort the student and walk them to class. Safety Patrol is like a dream for me because I love helping people.

Erick Orellana Bonilla

I like being a Safety Patrol because we can do kind deeds and help kids get to their classroom safely. We get to do fun activities. We get to help a lot of people and we get rewarded.
