The Board of education of Harford County Board has formally approved and signed the contract for Superintendent of Harford County Public Schools (HCPS) with Dr. Dyann R. Mack, marking a significant milestone for the school system and the community it serves.

During the Board's meeting, members also presented Dr. Mack with a special proclamation recognizing her historic achievements and deep-rooted connection to Harford County. Dr. Mack is the first graduate of Harford County Public Schools to return as Superintendent, the first graduate of Joppatowne High School to serve in the role, and the first Black Superintendent in HCPS history.

"Dr. Mack's journey from HCPS student to Superintendent is both inspiring and historic," said Board of Education President Lauren Paige. "Her leadership reflects a deep understanding of our schools, our students, and our community. We are proud to welcome her into this role and confident in her vision for the future of Harford County Public Schools."

Dr. Mack's appointment underscores HCPS's commitment to fostering leadership from within and celebrating excellence across the district. In accepting the proclamation, Dr. Mack expressed gratitude and a strong commitment to continuing the work of strengthening HCPS for all students.

"It is an incredible honor to serve as Superintendent of the school system that helped shape me," said Dr. Mack. "I am deeply grateful to the Board for their trust and to this community for its support. Together, we will continue to build on our successes and ensure every student is Ready by Design."

The Board's proclamation highlights not only Dr. Mack's professional accomplishments but also the significance of representation and the powerful message her leadership sends to current and future students across Harford County.

Dr. Mack will begin her tenure July 1, 2026, as Superintendent under the newly signed contract, working in partnership with the Board of Education, HCPS staff, students, families, and the broader community, to advance the district's mission and goals.
